Another deficit budget for Lee County

By ROBERT H. NELLIS

For the second consecutive year, the Lee County Board has adopted a deficit budget which has resulted in depleting the expected balance of the County General Fund from $997,000 on Nov. 30, 1973 to $545,575 by Nov. 30, 1975.

The budget approved Tuesday shows a smaller deficit than for the year just ending.

From 1974, the projected expenditures over revenues was $287,901 and the red ink figure estimated for 1975 dropped to $143,728.

Projected revenues for the coming year are $509,000 greater than for the present period and estimated expenses are up by $364,827 for 1975.

This is a slowing of the rate of draining the County General Fund but reducing the balance to about half a million dollars puts it in an undesirable condition.

There is a "rule of thumb" idea the fund balance at the close of any fiscal year should be equal to approximately one half the expenditures to be made from it for the next 12 months.

The reason for this is it will be almost six months before any new tax money is received.

The estimated balance in the general fund as of Nov. 30, 1975 will be 26 per cent of the projected expenses to be paid from the fund for the next fiscal year.

This is about half what it should be.

The "rule of thumb" idea is not as applicable now as in previous years because of the reimbursements which come to the county from non-property tax sources.

These include various grants, the sales tax refunds and income tax sharing.

These non-property tax resources come into county coffers on a more or less regular basis.

This fact provides a basis for the general fund balance to drop below the 50 per cent level but no one has determined how far below this level it may safely go.

Dean Hamilton, certified public accountant, who presented the budget to the board issued a warning, "The estimated ending balance in the fund will last for a couple of years at the rate the county is going and after that will be in trouble."

Warren Faber, District 2, asserted there is need to cut the expenditures from the general fund and that he is not satisfied enough effort has been expended to reduce spending.

He quoted Sharon Thompson, District 3, county treasurer-elect, estimating the county conservatively can expect to realize $50,000 in interest next year, up from about $25,000 for the current year.

Later Mrs. Thompson confirmed Faber had quoted her correctly, stating she could estimate how much interest the county had lost in previous years but it is not possible to predict just how much can be earned in the future.

She pointed to changing interest rates and varying needs for money which might cause the higher interest rate for short term investments to be those where it is illegal for counties to invest funds.

Mrs. Thompson said her estimate of $50,000 in interest earned is "conservative."

Faber, vainly tried to get the board to consider cutting 2 per cent from every department and permitting the department head to decide where cuts are to be made.

He calculated the county could save $50,000 if his proposal was carried out.

In a final plea Faber said, "One more year from today we will be looking at a $200,000 balance in the general fund for the next year (1976) and we will be bankrupt."

"It's serious, we should do something today."

"I don't want the day to come when our employees will face payless paydays."

The board, on a roll call vote of 23 to 1, passed the proposed budget. Faber was the lone "no" voter.

The major increases in spending come from: Sheriff, $80,000 with $30,000 being in salaries; Courthouse, $110,000, which is for remodeling and roof repairs and air-conditioning which will be paid from federal revenue funds; the nursing home with an increase of $150,000, of which

Merle Smith, right, was seated Tuesday as a member of the Lee County Board and is shown being congratulated by Board Chairman A. H. Frazza, District 4. Smith was named to replace John Selgestad, who resigned, and will represent District 4. Other board members elected Nov. 5 will be seated and the board will reorganize and elect a new chairman on Dec. 2. (Telegraph Photo) salaries constitute $90,000.

Federal revenue sharing projects which are included in the general fund total $475,000 and that amount of these funds have been included in the general fund receipts.

In other business, Merle Topper, District 1, chairman, Road and Bridge Committee, reported a dispute between the committee and Lowell Wilson, former owner of the county highway building.

Topper related Wilson had been engaged to build a partition and to rewire some areas of the building on a time and material basis and the committee believes he charged too much.

Topper revealed Wilson had lopped $700 from the bill but the committee is still not satisfied.

He reported Ronald Brandau, county highway superintendent, kept track of the time worked by Wilson's employees and his figures do not agree with the number Wilson billed the county.

Topper declared since it was on a time and material basis, he does believe the bill should be negotiated. A correct amount can be determined.

No action was taken, but the committee was advised not to pay the bill until being satisfied the charges are correct.

Brandau informed the board a resolution was passed at the Nov., 1973 meeting for the county to pay $4,000 toward the construction of Progress Drive in the Tollway Industrial Park and that the money has never been paid.

The city of Dixon and South Dixon Township also shared in the cost of the road.

The board voted to pay the amount.

State's Atty. Patrick Ward told the board should the Thornber Company sue the board for cancellation of the contract to purchase video-voting machines, and if the county should lose, the total obligation will be about $32,000.

He noted the purchase agreement calls for payments of about $16,000 until the $110,000 price of the machines is paid, with the provision the contract may be cancelled after two years.

Arafat begins making case for Palestinian state

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Greeted by resounding cheers, Arab guerrilla chieftain Yasser Arafat brought the case of the Palestinians before the U.N. General Assembly today.

Arafat, wearing his traditional Arab headdress, responded to the cheers and applause of delegates by holding his hands clasped over his head — a traditional gesture of victory.

Speaking in Arabic, Arafat told the General Assembly: "Zionist ideology and Israeli leadership... offer Jews perpetual bloodshed, endless war and continuous thralldom."

Arafat, who leads the over-all Palestinian guerrilla movement, invited Israel's Jews to join with the Palestinian Arabs "in one democratic state where Christian, Jew and muslim live in justice, equality and fraternity."

Arafat arrived under unprecedented security precautions here, flying by helicopter to U.N. headquarters after landing on an overnight flight from Algeria early today.

Before Arafat began speaking, the New York City Fire Department said an anonymous caller had warned that bombs would explode at U.N. headquarters at 11:28 a. m. and 11:42 a. m. This was about the time the session was scheduled to start. Bomb squad units were dispatched and the Fire Department later termed the threats as unfounded.

Outside U. N. headquarters on the East River, a small group of about 100 demonstrators chanted, "Murderers! Murderers!" as limousines carrying Arafat's aides drew up to the United Nations entrance. Other than that the area was clear and under heavy police guard.

Arafat arrived earlier at the United Nations by helicopter from John F. Kennedy Airport under unprecedented security precautions.

The bearded, 44-year-old leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), was listed to face the General Assembly at 10:30 a. m., EST, but the session was delayed.

Just before the scheduled opening of the U.N. General Assembly session, a woman with the Palestinian group told a reporter that 200 copies of an English translation of Arafat's prepared address had been "stolen." She did not elaborate.

Arafat arrived in New York from Algeria just before sunup. Surrounded by security men, he was escorted to the helicopter, which whisked him to the United Nations' garden. He was quickly hustled inside the building.

Feeling against Arafat's PLO runs high among New York City's two million Jews. The leader of the Jewish Defense League, a militant minority group among them, has been arrested on a charge of threatening to assassinate Arafat.

An aide said that after Arafat entered U.N. headquarters he was reported to have taken a nap.

Then just before 10 a. m., Arafat emerged from a door to the area of the assembly meeting hall and made his way to a room behind the podium.

He later stopped outside and at the office assigned to the PLO and he and 10 or so other men kissed each other on the cheeks, an Arab custom.

There were several police and Coast Guard launches in the East River immediately behind the 39-story glass, steel and stone building.

The 16-acre U.N. complex was closed to the public. Outsiders could enter only with special passes from a temporary outpost across the street.

New York police canceled all days off and redistributed its manpower to concentrate on the midtown Manhattan area, where 16 PLO members were staying in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Police used bomb-sniffing German shepherds to comb through the garage, elevators and five floors where 15 suites were reserved for the PLO delegation, but found nothing. The suites range in price from $150-$450 a day.

Outside, some 1,000 police kept demonstrators away from the hotel. Police sharpshooters were perched in nearby skyscrapers and a police helicopter shuttled from the hotel to the U.N. headquarters, keeping an eye out for demonstrations.

The PLO delegation went to U.N. headquarters in three limousines. They were accompanied by two Secret Service cars with agents armed with submachine guns and shotguns.

During a news conference at U.N. headquarters, PLO spokesman Shafiv el-Hout said the PLO was at the United Nations for its first "major diplomatic undertaking for the Palestinians' legitimate rights."

He said he wanted to meet reporters "so that our constructive, sustained and purposive dialogue will not be sidetracked by marginal noise and hysterical harassment from any quarter."

He evidently was referring to Russell Kelner, a member of the militant Jewish Defense League, who was arrested Tuesday after threatening to assassinate Arafat, and was ordered held in lieu of $100,000 bail for a hearing Nov. 22.

Police at Kennedy Airport said Arafat was accompanied to the United Nations by his top lieutenant, Farouk Khaddoumi.

Pay hikes for 2 Ogle officials are frozen

By LENNY INGRASSIA

OREGON — The salaries of two elected Ogle County officers were ordered frozen until an attorney-general's opinion is received to determine the legality of their already-approved pay increases. The action was taken in the afternoon session of the Ogle County Board on Tuesday.

The board okayed pay raises from $10,000 to $13,700 annually for Coroner Robert Personette and a $2,300 increase in pay for Circuit Clerk Morris Roe, despite attempts by Charles Finch, Mt. Morris, to pull the items before approval of the 1974-75 budget, during the morning session.

John Leary, Oregon, said he was concerned about the legality of the raises in light of present laws.

"Salaries can be increased yearly if it is agreed to before the elected member takes office," he said. "Otherwise it's not legal."

One exception was noted, however, in the form of an attorney general's opinion which excluded the circuit clerk from the law, saying the post is part of the judicial system.

The board agreed to contact State Sen. Jack Roe to obtain the legal opinion. If the ruling is in favor of retaining the raises given in the middle of an officeholder's term, the new pay raise would become retroactive to Dec. 1.

The Rockford law firm of Maynard, Brassfield and Cowan was retained by the board to defend the county in a lawsuit with the Browning Ferris Co.

The Rockford disposal firm filed suit against the county in attempts to have the court overturn board action which denied zoning of a 160-acre landfill site near the Ogle-Winnebago County line near U.S. 51.

No date was set for a hearing on the matter.

Rockefeller admits book mistake, defends gifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller said today he made a mistake in not halting publication of a book critical of former Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, but defended his cash gifts to friends and associates as acts of generosity "in the tradition of sharing with others."

Goldberg was his 1970 opponent for New York governor.

Appearing before the Senate Rules Committee for a second round of hearings on his fitness to become vice president, Rockefeller said his great wealth should not be a barrier to high office.

Rockefeller said the central question raised by his nomination was whether his family background would somehow limit him so he would not be able to serve the general good of all Americans.

37 indictments by Ogle Grand Jury

OREGON — Thirty-seven indictments were returned against 32 persons at the conclusion of a Grand Jury session here. Arural Oregon man, Robert Shaffer, was indicted on charges of reckless homicide, involuntary manslaughter and failure to report a fatality accident within 48 hours.

Shaffer is accused of driving his car into the rear of a bicycle operated by Nancy Reed, throwing her to the pavement. Her body was found later. The accident occurred on Flagg Road Aug. 21 near Chana Road. Shaffer was arrested by Ogle County Sheriff's Police.

Jurors indicted Dannie L. Hoggard, Rochelle, on two counts of sale of amphetamines and aggravated battery. The battery charge stemmed from the knifing of Clayton Lewis in Rochelle on Aug. 11.

Others indicted were Jerry C. Strobbe and Judy Young, Rochelle, both on forgery charges.

Indicted on burglary charges were Edwin D. Boyden, Michael Hultquist, Douglas L. Towns, William A. Nicholson, Dale A. Baker and John Warne, all of Mt. Morris; Robert M. Stacey, and Lynn E. Spangler, both of Oregon; John W. Holloway, Rockford, and Richard S. Hart, Davis Junction.

Theft indictments were returned against John Coffey, Richard M. Skelt, Arthur A. Davis and Sharon L. Bonnell, all of Rochelle; Shirley A. Lambert and Frankie Eichelberger, both of Rockford; Raymond F. Lewis Jr. and Fred C. McCollom, both of Oregon, and William R. Jacasin, address unknown.

Indicted on charges of sale of amphetamines were Henry R. Long, Rochelle, and Samuel L. LaFleur, Kings.

Others indicted were Marcelas Smith, Rochelle, attempted arson; Marino Scotoni, Rochelle, auto theft; Donald C. Seaworth II, Rochelle, criminal damage to property; Gerald R. Thomas, Rochelle, conspiracy; James C. Biase, Rochelle, possession of amphetamines; Anthony McDermott, Byron, possession of marijuana and Ronny E. Oberg, Rockford, burglary and criminal damage to property.

Those indicted are scheduled to appear for arraignment before Circuit Judges John Moore and F. Lawrence Lenz on Nov. 18 and Nov. 22.

Two women being held in possible diamond theft

Two women, believed to be of Hungarian descent, were being held in Lee County jail today in connection with an alleged home invasion and theft of a diamond ring on the city's north-side.

Being held on charges of theft and burglary were Gertrude Ropa, 28, and Cai Bull, 24. Addresses were not available on either woman.

Dixon Police officers were called to the Addie Oswald residence, 342 W. Everett St., shortly before 3 p.m. Tuesday, after Mrs. Oswald found the women in her home.

The victim told officers she was met by one woman, whom she later identified as the Bull woman, standing in the kitchen doorway. After asking her why she was in her home, the Bull woman reportedly answered she was looking for a room to rent.

Mrs. Oswald told police it appeared as though the woman she was talking with was hiding the presence of the second woman. After talking for several minutes, Mrs. Oswald said the women left and moments later she discovered a diamond ring missing from her bedroom.

Officers spotted the suspects walking near the intersection of Boyd Street and Hennepin Avenue. The Ropa woman kept walking, officers said, after they approached the Bull woman. The suspect was identified by Mrs. Oswald as the same woman she had talked with in her home. Her companion was apprehended at Hardee's drive-in.

Both women were brought to the Law Enforcement Center, where they denied any knowledge of the burglary. Officers said the women claimed they did not speak or understand English, however, Mrs. Oswald told police she and the Bull woman talked for several minutes at her home and she seemed to understand everything spoken, Mrs. Oswald said.

A search of both women by police matron Carol Weiser failed to turn up the missing diamond.

Both women were scheduled to appear before Associate Judge Martin D. Hill today for setting of bond.

Argentina big duck in shooting gallery

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

Behind President Isabel Martinez de Peron's Nov. 6 order declaring Argentina in a state of siege culminates an event that started Nov. 1.

On that Friday evening Alberto Villar, equivalent to our director of the FBI, and his wife were killed by a bomb that blew their cabin cruiser 30 feet out of the water.

It culminated 138 political violence killings that have rocked her hold since she took power on July 1 with the death of husband Juan D. Peron.

Argentina stands like a big duck in a short shooting gallery; a blind man could knock it off.

Forthright, courageous, extremely capable American Ambassador to Argentina Robert C. Hill, formerly our Ambassador to Mexico and Spain, has long been a star in our Foreign Service. We are old friends and I dined with him on his recent visit to our country.

Ambassador Hill told me that Villar's men vigilantly guard him day and night. They patrol the American Embassy and literally surround it, using walkie-talkies and all other devices. Our own U.S. security people, in a three-car convoy, ride everywhere with Ambassador Hill and his wife Cecilia, for to kidnap the American Ambassador is an obvious No. 1 goal.

At least four well-organized, iron-fisted underground groups are at war in Argentina. These are the Marxist People's Revolutionary Army; the leftist guerrillas of the Liberation Armed Forces; the Montoneros, the Peronist Youth's most radical cadre; and the Argentina Anti-Communist Alliance.

The lawlessness, the ghastly violence, the endless kidnapping for ransom and other objectives, have grown to be nearly standard practice in most of Argentina's 22 provinces.

President Isabel Peron cooperates well with Ambassador Hill and shows a disposition to be helpful, but her husband himself began much of Argentina's deterioration.

Peron built his power on trade unions and what he called the "descamisados"—the "shirtless ones." "Descamisados arise!" "riches for you," "a good life you're entitled to," "more pay for less of your labor," etc., tumbled out of Peron like apples out of a barrel. So did supporting legislation.

He made "featherbedding" legal.

R&D Soviets still No. 2

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The Soviet Union has two times as many men and women involved in research and development as we do. It is stepping up their numbers by 9 per cent a year, contrasted to our 6. At the top, a fistful of top Russian scientists are justifiably world famous.

Despite this, new studies indicate Russian industry advances into new fields only through the mammoth infusion at periodic intervals of American, West German and other Western knowhow. All countries buy or borrow scientific, engineering and operational knowledge from third nations. But Russia's strong dependence on American technology despite its own heavy and increasing expenditures for research and development, indicates something is radically wrong with its methods.

The import of U.S. knowledge goes on continuously. But the major surges are large indeed. Each leap forward in new directions in Soviet industry has been preceded by and seemingly dependent on these imports.

The development of basic Soviet industry in the 1920s, the breakthrough into electronics and advanced chemicals and chemical processes after World War II, and today's drive toward giant complex computers and ultrasophisticated electronics.

The reasons given for this Soviet inability to reach into new industrial fields, or to push into advanced technology without American assistance, are varied:

—The Soviet Union's most brilliant scientists concentrate on highly theoretical work where they will Countless workmen paid for eight hours worked only about an hour and a half, and still do. But finally the increasing chaos forced Peron into exile on Sept. 16, 1955.

He remained in Madrid nearly 18 years and then returned to Argentina on June 20, 1973. Peron, 77, again became president—only to die.

Yet if you go to Argentina, four times the size of Texas, you find it has everything—a garden spot, really.

Its million square miles are blessed with a magnificent climate, its soil marvelously productive and its people wonderfully alert, hard-working and uncrowded. Argentina's population (24 million) averages only 21 people per square mile.

In addition, Argentina borders safely on unthreatening nations. Her defense drain should be negligible. The armed forces total only 135,000 men.

Buenos Aires' urban area (8.4 million people) is the fifth largest in the world and the city is among the most modern. Five other cities exceed 365,000 population.

Argentina ranks among the world's three largest wheat exporters, leads the world in corn and linseed export, does an immense foreign trade in meats, hides, wool, sugar and fruits and rivals Egypt as a cotton grower.

But the government, squandering its foreign exchange, must deprive its citizens and sell abroad to get foreign exchange. They've even had Monday and Tuesday meatless days. In cattle-rich Argentina this is like having beerless days in Milwaukee.

More than half the budget is in deficit. And half of this is from footing the losses for the railroads, airlines, telephone and postal systems and the patchwork of government-owned industries.

Half of the 240 largest enterprises are profitless or worse. And the public, in turn, can stand neither the endless strikes nor the higher costs.

The inflation has stung the Argentine people like a pampa cowboy's whip. The peso has been devalued countless times, each devaluation to be the last, and then devalued again.

Certainly there's a lesson in all this for us. It proves again that politicians can't kick around even a rich country—and that includes the United States—without the people paying horribly for it.

have less supervision and harassment by rabid Party managers. Or they operate in military fields approved by the party.

—Second and third-echelon scientists and engineers seem to concentrate on conventional approaches and find themselves unable to translate their discoveries into practical industrial techniques, except at an extremely slow pace. They frequently emphasize "bigness" rather than breakthroughs. A recent Soviet novel blames this lack of intellectual daring on the Soviet education system and, by implication, on Soviet society. The push for conformity is so great that college graduates have little ability left to think new thoughts. The book has not been banned . . . as of this writing.

—Most Soviet scientists, unlike their American counterparts, are located in special research institutes, isolated from problems faced in industry. Seventy-five per cent of U.S. scientists are connected with manufacturing concerns and other operating units in the field; 12 per cent of Soviet scientists have such connections.

—The Soviet emphasis on centralized planning leaves the local industrial manager little room for making experiments and taking chances. He must meet quotas at any cost.

There's a lesson here for the United States. Recent studies on American schools indicate that the magnificent creativity and imagination noticed particularly in 2- and 3-year-olds, is squeezed out of most American students by the fourth grade.

Pedal power?

The White House has called in the nation's automakers to discuss the need to build cars that get at least 20 miles to the gallon by 1980.

According to the Environmental Protection Agency and the Department of Transportation, if all cars got 20 miles per gallon it would save the United States more than a million barrels of crude oil a day. There is a not-so-veiled threat that if the companies don't voluntarily come up with ways of meeting that goal, the government will force them to.

In the meantime, at least between 1976 and 1980, the average American car may do worse than it does now—thanks to government regulations.

The Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Assn. claims that the improved fuel economy of 1975 model cars—an estimated 13.5 per cent better than on 1974 models made possible by the catalytic converter—may be largely cancelled out next year when a series of stricter government safety, damageability and antipollution standards go into effect.

One manufacturer has determined that the 1976 standards will add at least 225 pounds to the weight of one of its current subcompact models, included are 73 pounds for a stonger bumper system, 25 pounds for emissions hardware and 126 pounds for other additions such as door beams. The necessity of using a larger engine to haul this increased weight would add another 90 pounds.

The subcompact, modified to meet 1976 standards, was tested under a combination of city and suburban driving conditions and used 14 per cent more fuel than a comparable 1975 model.

It begins to appear that if we want cars that are safe and pollution-free and economical, too, we are going to have to start thinking about pedal power.

Is gold worth its weight in trouble?

By ELIZA PAUL

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Gold, which Americans will be able to legally own by the end of the year for the first time since the Great Depression, won't be much of a hedge against inflation. Not only does the U.S. Treasury plan to sell off its considerable gold stock to keep the price down in case of a rush, but it's expensive to keep around for the investor who doesn't bury it in the back yard.

Rep. Henry S. Reuss (D-Wis.), who authored the legislation making gold ownership possible, cautions against buying it as an investment. "It's a good way to take a good short-term capital loss," he says, pointing out that gold pays no interest or dividends and that owners will be strapped with vault or insurance costs.

The Treasury, which anticipates an initial buying spree, stands ready to sell off a portion of its $11.7 billion in gold holdings to keep the price from rising since the government no longer needs to hold onto it for international monetary purposes. The 276 million ounces of U.S.-owned gold is enough to put a damper on prices for a long, long time.

It became illegal for all but industrial users and rare coin collectors to own gold in 1933 when Congress decided to pump up the Depression economy by setting a new, higher price for the metal. While this didn't make economic sense, there was a logical fear that Americans would hoard their gold coins—which would suddenly be worth more—instead of buying goods. And the nation needed a spending spree to get things moving again.

Up to that time, the price of gold had been set at $20.67 per ounce since 1793. All coins were made of gold and coins were literally worth their weight in gold—a $20 gold piece contained $20 worth of the metal. Paper money could also be converted into gold but this too was halted for Americans by the 1933 act.

Citizens were required to turn all their gold currency over to the Federal Reserve Banks and, under legislation passed the following year, the Reserve Banks in turn handed theirs over to the Treasury which melted them down to be stored in vaults. The government only got back about a third of the gold coins in circulation, but the rest were soon classified as "rare" and therefore legal to hold. But melting them down and playing Gnome of Zurich in the basement was strictly forbidden, and still is.

Gold became the kingpin of the international monetary system after World War II when the Bretton Woods Agreement pegged all currencies to the dollar—then the strongest currency—and pegged the dollar to gold at $35 per ounce. The United States had to hold the price of gold to keep the new system from coming unglued and it was feared that the price would be pushed up if U.S. citizens were allowed to buy it. So the ban remained in effect.

The Bretton Woods plan was almost shattered by a run on gold by private speculators overseas in 1967 and 1968 and the result was establishment of a "two tier" gold market. The official price would be held at $35 per ounce and the free market price for private traders could go wherever it wanted to. Today, after two dollar devaluations in a world of so-called "floating currencies" which aren't pegged to anything, the official gold price is $42.22 per ounce.

The experience of speculators after the two-tier system was initiated may be a good lesson for would-be U.S. investors. The price of free market gold initially climbed to around $40 per ounce, but by early 1970 dropped to even less than the official price.

Free market prices have since skyrocketed and the United States halted gold convertibility by foreigners in 1971 before prices went through the ceiling. In 1972, an ounce of gold was going for $60 on the London market, the main trading center, and the next year it was selling for around $100. In late March of this year, the price peaked at $180 per ounce but has since drifted downward to $140.

At those prices, it's no bargain and investors with only a limited amount of cash or fear of losing their shirts would probably do well to avoid the gold market entirely, according to a Treasury official. Commercial dealers will rarely sell less than 10 ounces to a single customer and the less gold bought, the higher the price. Like cereal and laundry detergent, the precious metal is also subject to handling costs and dealers will charge as much for taking care of 10 ounces as 30.

If there is a market for smaller quantities, it will cost even more. And that cute little gold ingot on the coffee table, already overpriced, will be subject to all the fluctuations of an unpredictable market if the owner ever wants to sell it.

Big investors will be able to buy gold from refineries and banks which sell it in practically any form, including bars of bullion. Small quantities at higher prices will probably be available just about anywhere, from the local jeweler or a department store. The Treasury official cautions that small investors should buy from reputable dealers, rather than bargain hunting. There are no laws specifically protecting buyers except prohibitions against false advertising claims and the shady dealer will probably have folded his tent by the time his customer figure out he's been gypped.

Even for the big time investor, gold buying could turn out to be a bad deal. Such investment, according to the Treasury official, "is dangerous but fun—if you have a lot of money to lose."

Old sayings about weather are correct

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY Associated Press Writer

CENTRALIA, Ill. (AP) — If he knows what to look for, the tenderest tenderfoot can be as weather wise as the wildest woodsman. He doesn't need bunsions to tell him when to hit the tentward trail—just a weather eye.

Remember the old saw: "Red in the morning, sailor take warning; red at night, sailor's delight?" That works on land as well.

Ms. Sue Drochter, a National Weather Service forecaster in St. Louis, explained why.

Red-sky sunrises are produced by cloud-cover reflection. "That means for the rest of the day you can expect cloudiness or some weather," she said. But a red-sky sunset "usually means breaks in the clouds that allow the sun to shine through" and "clear overnight."

A lot of canards like that, Ms. Drochter, 24, says, are as true as they are tried.

Birds on a wire, for example. Birds roost on telephone lines, trees or whatever is handy as a storm approaches. Most storms are born of low pressure systems which have thinner, harder-to-fly-in air. And, Ms. Drochter says, birds get restless up to half a day before the storm appears: "They get pretty excited, a lot of chirping."

Okay, what else is new? Flies. "Flies," she said, "sense rain. Most animals do, most insects. If they are bothersome it is usually an indication of on-coming bad weather. I don't really know why flies do that but they do."

And here are some other things to look for:

—Leaves show their backs just before a storm. They grow with the prevailing wind and the wind change that usually accompanies rain turns them over.

—Dewy grass at night or early morning bodes fair weather. It forms under clear dry skies.

—Fowl fly higher in good weather than in bad. Low pressure affects their ears.

—No matter how dark they are, high clouds don't yield rain. But if, as the day progresses, the clouds get lower and lower it's a sign of rain.

—If the plume of smoke from a cabin chimney or campfire steadily rises the weather will be fair. Low pressure forces smoke down.

—Conversely smells are stronger just before rain. Contained by fair weather, fragrances are released by low pressure.

—To find out where the storm is coming from, face the wind. It's usually on your right because in this hemisphere winds circle low pressure zones counterclockwise.

—Distant rifle reports sound louder and hollow as rain nears. They echo off the lowering cloud ceiling.

—Finally, a storm usually will reach you if it's to the west or northwest. Most storms move northwest to southeast. Generally you're clear of those to the south or east.

CONVERSATION ON CARPET

By Dorothy Wermers

Your New Carpet

You've finally made up your mind and have selected that lovely carpet for your home. You've anxiously waited for it to be installed and now it's in your home... looking as lovely as you'd hoped it would. Although today's carpets are made for quick and easy maintenance, there are a few things to remember if you want to keep your carpet as beautiful and new-looking as it is right now.

First, vacuum daily to prevent surface dirt from having a chance to become embedded in your carpet. Attend to spills and stains quickly. Periodically move heavy furniture pieces so they don't make a permanent indentation in your carpet. If there is an indentation, use your steam iron to moisten the pile, then brush back into place. When your carpet begins to look soiled, brighten the pile by use of one of the home cleaning methods recommended by the manufacturer. It's a good idea to have your carpet cleaned once a year by a professional.

At Wermers Carpet, 313 W. First St. we carry the finest quality carpet at reasonable prices. We guarantee that with proper day-to-day maintenance, the carpet you purchase from us will remain attractive and new-looking for years to come. Come in and see this wide selection.

Take samples to your home for close inspection, light-wise and to see how it will look with your furniture. Then have us measure and give you a quotation for your complete job — It may be less than you think. Phone us today at 288-2739 to find out.

Poll: sex values change slowly

(Note: Today's column is written by Joanne)

Sex before marriage and an equal amount of sexual freedom for single men and single women is not yet acceptable to most Americans. According to the 3,000 women and 1,000 men questioned in the 1974 Virginia Slims poll, we still have mixed emotions about sexual equality even though a majority of men and women approve of equality in all other areas of life.

Seventy-five per cent of the women and men questioned believe the new morality will result in more people living together before marriage. But only one-third believe such trial runs will result in more honest marital relationships. The majority see the greater freedom as having an adverse effect on marriage and weakening the country's morals. (The survey was taken before Watergate.)

The most telling evidence that Americans haven't accepted the new morality comes in the section concerning "what you would want for your own daughter." Most men and women agree that premarital sex is not immoral, that single women should enjoy the same freedom as single men. Yet less than 1 in 10 would find such behavior acceptable in their own daughters.

In fact, the majority of Americans, as represented by this sample, find it more distressing to know that an unmarried daughter is living with a man, than to learn an unmarried daughter is a mother. Motherhood, even under these circumstances, is easier to accept for most parents than sexual freedom for their own daughters.

While Americans have strong reservations about the new morality, they have been remarkably progressive in adapting to greater equality for women. There are some regional differences, southern and northeastern women showing up in this poll as more conservative than western women. But throughout the country women and men are realizing the importance of self-respect and mutual respect. A majority of women (57 per cent) and an even higher percentage of men (63 per cent) are in favor of efforts to improve women's status.

Will our sexual mores catch up with our changed political and social attitudes? The double standard still has a subtle hold on many Americans. Mothers want happy marriages for their sons and daughters, but a substantial number think an interesting career is more important for sons than daughters. Parents want to protect their children from sexual permissiveness, but they still believe daughters need more protecting in this area than sons.

Women 18 to 29 may change when they are parents, but right now half of them see the new morality as leading to a better choice of marriage partners and more honest relationships for couples.

If the attitudes of the younger women polled are any indication, sowing wild oats is about to take its place with needlepoint on the agenda of the American woman.

Attention! Prospective brides

Because of misunderstanding on wedding pictures, The Telegraph is asking prospective brides to arrange for good black-and-white wedding pictures for use with wedding stories.

Color photographs and black-and-white prints off a color negative are unsatisfactory for good newspaper reproduction.

Rather than be disappointed by having a picture rejected by the newspaper, we are advising brides to insist on a black-and-white picture shot with black-and-white film.

Score differs as defense does

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Here is a hand that decided a team match. Five diamonds was the contract at both tables after the same bidding.

At table one West led out two high hearts. South ruffed the second heart and reviewing the bidding carefully came to the conclusion that the spade finesse was going to be a loser and he had best find some other line of play.

He found it nicely. He simply cashed three rounds of clubs and led a trump. East had to win the trick and had no lead that would not give South the rest of the tricks.

The other South went down one. When it came to comparing time East and West wanted to know why that South hadn't worked out the same play that had made the hand at table one.

South's reply was "I'm glad you asked. Unfortunately for our side I didn't get a chance to work it out. It seems that at trick one East played his jack of hearts. West thought and thought and finally decided he had been given a suit-prefer-

For the record we think that the winners really earned their victory. South's dummy play at table 1 was excellent. The East-West defense at table 2 was even better.

Meeting for WW II Mothers

Members of the Dixon Unit, Mothers of World War II, met recently in Loveland Community House when Mrs. Theodore Mason, Sr., president, conducted a business session following the pledge of allegiance to the American flag.
A communication was read from the Veterans Administration Hospital in Fayetteville, Ark., thanking the unit for a recent monetary gift, and it was announced that the Oregon WW II Mothers Unit will serve with Dixon unit members as hostesses for a District 13 meeting planned for Dec. 4 in Loveland Community House. Women attending will provide individual luncheons and items for a district bake sale, and the meeting will be followed by a social hour and an exchange of $1.00 holiday gifts.

Mrs. Ralph Newman reported on the sale of Veterans Aid Seals, and a Christmas party planned for Dec. 11 will include a 12:30 p.m. luncheon at Parkway Village preceding a business meeting and gift exchange in the home of Mrs. Edward Schick.

Two guest speakers for Woman's Club meeting

Mrs. John Thomas, president of the Dixon Woman's Club, presided at Saturday's club meeting in Loveland Community House and led the pledge of allegiance to the American flag.

A memorial service was held for the late Mrs. Edward Gleim, a member of the club, and devotions were given by Mrs. A. E. Marth.

Mrs. Charles Kerchner introduced Robert Mulkins, a member of the Dixon Police Department, who spoke on "Defensive Driving." He stated that an average of two or three accidents occur in the Dixon area daily, and most are due to errors by the driver or mechanical failure. He also showed a film depicting various reasons for accidents and the results of automobile collisions.

A native of Dixon, Mr. Mulkins has worked in the public communications division of the Dixon Police Department for 12 years, and he is the father of three children.

Reports were given during a business session by Mrs. J. E. Carry, Mrs. Loren Miller, Mrs. George Walker and Miss Ruth Bollman. The membership chairman, Mrs. John Hyland, announced the following new club members: Mrs. Wayne Brooks, Miss Janell Laughlin, Mrs. Merton Carpenter, Miss Catherine Densmore, Mrs. Leone Densmore and Mrs. James Marshall, and Miss Esther Barton reported on recent meetings for the club garden division and craft division.

It was also announced that the club would sponsor a party Friday for residents of the Lee County Nursing Home.

Mrs. Carry introduced the afternoon's second speaker, Miss Dawn Deets, who is on leave from her duties as a missionary-nurse at a leprosarium in Pleiku, Vietnam, where members of the Jera tribe reside.

The tribe is one of the largest in Vietnam, and approximately 10 per cent are afflicted with leprosy. Although there is no cure for the disease, it can be arrested with medication. The leprosarium, which was constructed in 1968, conducts 24 clinics each month to treat the lepers who survive on a diet of rice, roots and fish.

The speaker also displayed clothing worn by women of the tribe and a collection of their cooking utensils.

Miss Deets attended St. Paul Bible College in St. Paul, Minn., and received her nurse's training at Swedish-American Hospital in Rockford. She has served as a missionary-nurse for 12 years.

During the afternoon's social hour, refreshments were served from a table centered by gold candles and an arrangement of autumn flowers in a miniature Indian canoe.

Presiding at the table were Miss Esther Longanecker and Miss Nan McGinnis, and the hostess committee co-chairmen, Mrs. Francis Jennings and Miss Longanecker, were assisted by Mrs. William Meyer, Mrs. Warren Mynard, Mrs. William Worley, Mrs. John Bopp, Miss Frances Patrick, Mrs. Harold Emmert, Mrs. Gordon McDonald, Mrs. B. J. Frazier, Mrs. George Kieffer, Mrs. John Marshall, Mrs. H. A. Lazier, Mrs. Ada Huyett, Mrs. Dean Shippert, Mrs. Leon Brooks, Mrs. DeWitt Morgan and Mrs. Walker.

Dear Ann by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: What can parents do about a 27-year-old son who comes home from the service, discovers his wife has fallen in love with another man, refuses to accept the realities of the situation, and decides to do everything and anything to get her back?

What he did first was to call her long-distance on OUR phone every night for three weeks. (We live in Miami. She went to her mother's in Seattle.) The bill came to over $500.

When my husband and I saw it, we almost had a double case of heart failure. His father handed him the bill and said, "We can't afford to pay this." He handed the bill back and replied, "That's too bad. I bet you'll find the money somehow when they tell you they are disconnecting your telephone."

Two days later he left for Seattle. In the meantime, the phone company is writing and calling us and we think it's lousy. After all, we aren't to blame for the crazy behavior of a 27-year-old crybaby. All we did was give him room and board. Any suggestions?—Broke and Burning

Dear B and B: Sorry, but if the crybaby made the calls on your phone, you are responsible for the bill. Moreover, he is right when he says if you don't pay it the phone company will discontinue the service. (P.S. Who raised that vegetable?)

Dear Ann Landers: You reprinted a piece by another writer called, "The Great Automobile Repair Rip-Off." It was an insult to the thousands of ethical, hard-working men and women in the auto-repair industry.

Our organization, Independent Garage Owners, is dedicated to consumer protection. Our code of ethics states our pledge to give quality work at fair prices.

Your readers should be informed that the majority of auto-repair shops are out to give top service and make satisfied customers. We can be found in the Yellow Pages under Auto Repairs. Thank you.—Terry Parker, President, IGO, Chicago, Ill.

Dear Terry Parker: Ten lashes with an old fuel pipe for Ann Landers. I should not have permitted the clobber to go unchallenged.

Granted, there's plenty of ripping off these days, and the auto-repair people are among the worst offenders, but I know there are many honest people in the business and I should have said so. Thanks for sharpening my points.

Dear Ann Landers: A few weeks ago you published an essay—"Author Unknown"—sent in by a woman who found it between a baby book and an old road map. It was written by a mother of three explaining why she loved each child "the best."

That "unknown author" happens to be Erna Bombeck. She deserves credit for it.—A Reader of HERS, Too

Dear Reader: I feel like falling on my sword in the City Room. Not only is Erna a great writer, but she is a good friend of mine.

I thought I'd read every word Erna ever wrote, but I must have been out of the country when that column appeared. Thanks for letting me know. (P.S. Erna, dear, please write and tell me all is forgiven.) (Copyright 1974, Field Enterprises, Inc.)

Polly's Pointers

Polly's Problem DEAR POLLY — In the stores I have seen rolled-up paper that burns like a log. Does anyone know the method one would use for rolling up papers and saturating them so they could be made at home and burned like logs? I would greatly appreciate knowing how to do this. — MILDRED.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with those plastic bread wrappers printed with colors that bleed on my laminated plastic kitchen countertops. They will not wipe off. They fade out but only after a long period of time. This depends on how long the kids left the bread on the wet counter along with the peanut butter, jelly and ketchup that caused the dampness because they are kept in the refrigerator. — MRS. J. S.

DEAR POLLY — And J. N. who wants to get rid of the odor left in her sofa after the cat mistook it for the litter box — Put an open box of cat litter or its contents under the cushions and another under the sofa itself I find this also removes the odor from refrigerators or deep freezes when they develop bad odors. Hope this helps J. N. as it has helped us. — MRS. E. W.

DEAR POLLY — My cat made the same mistake as J. N.'s. My sister suggested that I generously use plain old alcohol on my sofa and it worked. (Test first). Now there is no odor even in damp weather. — C. E.

DEAR POLLY — I keep one of those sponges attached to a long handle that can be bought at tropical fish and aquarium supply stores at my kitchen sink. Since it was designed to remove algae from the sides of an aquarium it is abrasive in texture and excellent for cleaning the inside of a thermos bottle, canning jars, tea pots and the like. — MARGARET.

DEAR POLLY — I want to share with the other gals my way of using leftover yarn. I had many small balls of many colors. When I had a gift to wrap within the hour and had paper but no ribbon or bows I used two colors of yarn to match the paper's design and made a pompon. Then I used three separate strands of yarn to tie the package, separating the yarn strands after the pompon was in place. It was attached just as a bow would be tied to a gift. The package was a conversation-piece and no one knew the reason for its being done that way. Use this little Pointer on the smallest or largest of gifts and adjust the size of the pompon accordingly.

If you are out of gift paper white shelf paper works perfectly. As many colors of yarn as you wish can be used for the tie. Do remember to wrap the pompon as tightly as possible or the gift will lose some of its looks. — MARYANN.

Eagles try to overcome weaknesses

By MIKE CUNIFF
Telegraph Sports Editor
FRANKLIN GROVE— "One of our problems is we have more weaknesses than strengths," commented head varsity basketball coach Dennis Kessel Tuesday about the upcoming season for the Franklin Center Eagles.

Kessel, who saw a 12-13 record in 1972-73 season improve to a 21-6 ledger last year, came to this statement because of the loss of his best two rebounders, two of the top three leading scorers and a quartet of his first seven players in 73-74.

Gone is center Doug Simpson (350 rebounds and 332 points), forward Joe Jahn (298 boards and 378 markers), along with guards Dick King and John Roop who alternated at one starting slot. "But we don't spend a lot of time dwelling on last year's team or success," Kessel stated. "We are more concerned with making this team better than what some people expect."

Kessel is fully aware of his team's strengths and weaknesses. "We will be quick, be able to run, have good anticipation, hustle and have a winning tradition from last year," he commented about the plus side. "Our weaknesses—and you will find some people who will disagree with me—include our shooting," Kessel said.

"We have two or three good shooters," he added, "but then, we have some others who are weak in shooting. They are strong in another area, however, and this has helped them to hide the weakness in their shooting. But shooting will be very important to us this season because I don't expect to see many man-to-man defenses."

"We don't have the big guy inside and this has got to hurt us. We'll have to rely more on our accuracy with our 10-foot jump shots instead of getting the ball inside. We must stay out of foul trouble, too, and this is our number one concern—depth."

"Last year, we had (John) Kirchhofer or King or Rusty (Klavenga) ready on the bench. That has been one of our major concerns—to come up with a good seventh and eighth man to fit into our style of play. We do like to press and run but remember, as the tempo picks up, the fouls pick up. We still hope to be aggressive on defense but we might have to play it safer."

"People might say rebounding will hurt us this year but we hope to play the kind of defense that we come up with definite situations that work to our advantage," Kessel continued.

"We hope to cause more one-on-one rebounding instead of collapsing back and have a three-on-three or four-on-four situation develop."

Checking out on the boards will be the decisive factor in many Eagle contests as the tallest Franklin Center player is 6'0" Klavenga, who will alternate at center with fellow senior Kirchhofer, who is 5'9".

Kirchhofer had a 3.0 points per game average in limited action the past campaign, while Klavenga had six points total in nine contests. "Rusty will probably be our swingman," Kessel said. "Really, we will have no designated positions as such. Joe Burke and Jeff Heckman probably have the inside tracks on the forward positions."

Burke, out most of last season with an injury, appeared in only five games. Heckman, a junior, was the leading scorer on the sophomore squad, and "is probably the finest looking defensive player I've ever coached here," according to Kessel.

The guard slots will be manned by junior Jeff Jahn and either Scott Delhotal or Jim Roop. Jahn has lettered twice already for Franklin Center and increased his scoring average from 11.5 to 18.0 last year with 202 field goals in 27 games. Delhotal, who started at forward in 73-74, averaged 9.8 a contest, with 256 total markers in 26 games. Roop saw limited action. "Jeff Bresson, Scott Murphy and Jeff Curia will battle for the guard spot also," stated Kessel. "This is where the depth comes in."

The coach then broke down the positive factors for his club. "Certainly, when someone sees our center is only 5'9" or so, he might think this is a weakness," Kessel pointed out. "But we think although we will be smaller on defense, we will be quicker."

"And while we probably will have some problems rebounding, I will never sacrifice quickness for height. Quickness helps on defense and offense too. Quickness and reactions are a major part of the game."

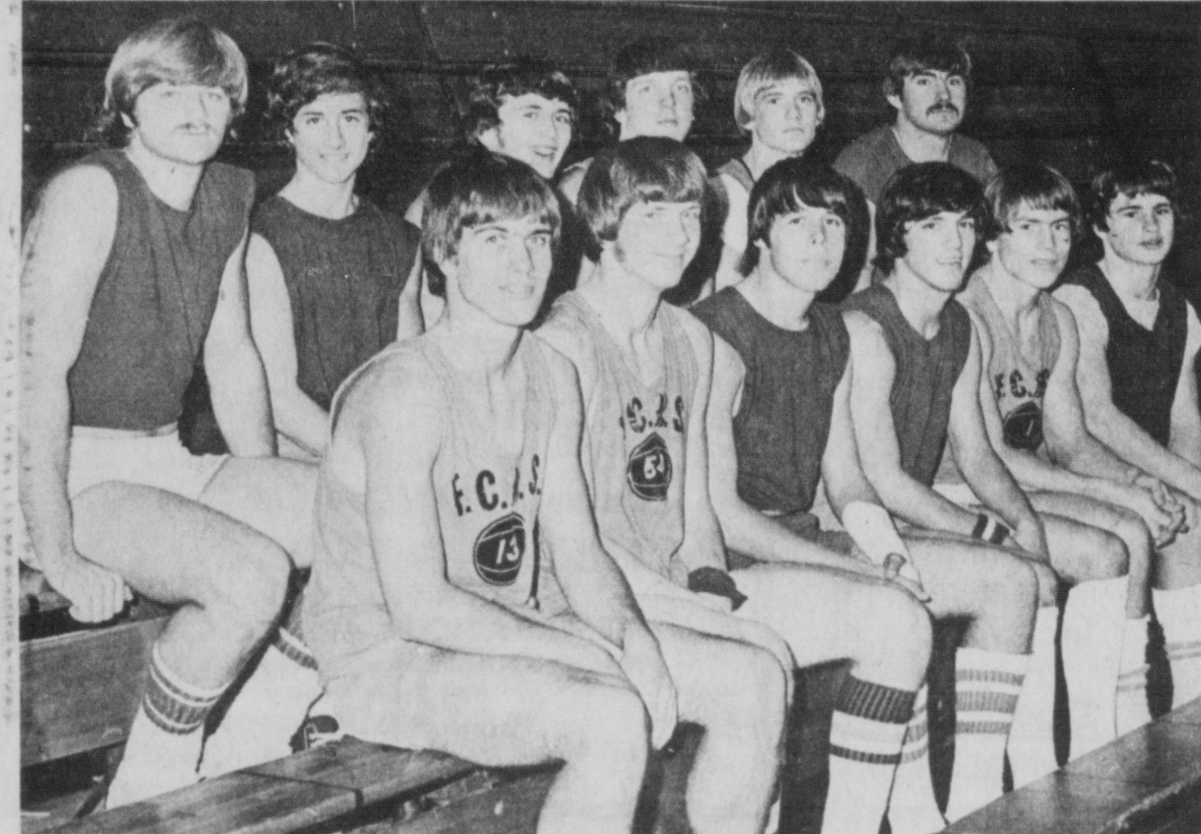

"We'll try to utilize our quickness by running with the ball. We try to put the heat on the other team. But this leads to being able to handle the ball and we seem to be a little weak in that regard. This will probably make or break our season. If we can cut down on our mistakes, we will be able to run the fast break better."

"Our players also anticipate well on defense," Kessel continued. "Our quickness compensates for our physical limitations here. And hustle—a loose ball is just like a rebound to us. We'll be more defensive-minded this year than last. In fact, we've only spent 45 minutes in seven practices so far on offense."

The Eagles open their 1974-75 campaign at Malta on Nov. 26 before returning home to face Waterman Nov. 29 in a pair of non-conference contests. Franklin Center moves into Upstate Illini competition this season in a division with Leaf River, Ashton, Pearl City, Durand, Orangeville and Rockford Lutheran.

"I think the schedule might be a little easier this year," Kessel admitted, "because I don't think the conference will be as strong as last year (Northwest Seven) from top to bottom. Our non-conference schedule is tough, though."

"Ashton will be a powerful ball club; and, although I don't know a lot about the new teams in our division (Durand, Orangeville and Pearl City), I feel Ashton, Pearl City and ourselves should be right up there battling for the conference title."

Brock finishes second

Garvey wins MVP

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP)—A failure as a third baseman, Steve Garvey switched to first base in 1973 and has now been named the National League's Most Valuable Player for 1974.

The former Michigan State athlete beat out Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals for the highest honors in the league.

"I hope to improve at first base," Garvey said on learning of the honor. "I'll not be satisfied with what I did this year."

What he did this year was to win MVP honors at the All-Star game, lead the Dodgers to the National League pennant and be voted the MVP in his league by baseball writers.

"We have one thing left—the World Series," declared Garvey, whose club lost to Oakland four games to one in this year's title event.

Garvey admitted the honor came as no surprise, figuring he and Brock, the new stolen bases king, would probably be the leading two.

"The biggest honor I received this year was a little baby girl," Garvey told a news conference. "But as far as professional baseball is concerned, this Most Valuable Player award has to be in the category of individual achievement all by itself."

Garvey was playing in the World Series at Oakland when his wife, Cyndy, gave birth to their first child, a daughter named Krishna Lee.

Garvey was a write-in vote starter at first base in the All-Star game. During the season, he hit .312 with 111 runs-batted-in and 21 home runs.

Garvey, 27, becomes the seventh Dodger to win the MVP award. He was preceded by Jake Daubert, 1913; Dazzy Vance, 1924; Dolph Camilli, 1941; Jackie Robinson, 1949; Roy Campanella, 1951, 1953 and 1955; Don Newcombe, 1956; Maury Wills, 1962, and Sandy Koufax, 1963.

Three Dodgers finished among the first five in the voting and of the 24 first-place votes, 16 went to Los Angeles players—13 to Garvey, two to Jimmy Wynn and one to Mike Marshall, the relief specialist who won the Cy Young Award as the top pitcher in the league.

Garvey received a total of 270 votes followed by Brock with 233; Marshall, 146; Johnny Bench of Cincinnati, 141, and Wynn with 137. Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia had 131.

Celtics rally to defeat Bucks

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer
When the Boston Celtics gained their eighth National Basketball Association victory, even their coach was astonished.

"I couldn't believe it," said Coach Tom Heinsohn. "I never saw anything like that."

The Celtics could sink only three field goals in the entire first quarter, but stormed back from a 19-point second period deficit to defeat the Milwaukee Bucks 91-83.

In other NBA games Tuesday night, Portland nipped New York 105-103, Buffalo stopped Cleveland 112-94, Chicago defeated New Orleans 88-79, Houston edged Kansas City-Omaha 103-99 and Golden State rolled over Atlanta 128-111.

"I thought we'd never score a basket," Heinsohn said. "We must have missed 10 layups. They should have been up by 40 points after that."

Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello, who learned that injured center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar will be out longer than originally expected, said he couldn't fault the Bucks' defensive effort that held Boston to just seven points in the opening period.

Despite the horrendous start, Boston hit on 40 per cent of its shots from the floor while the Bucks shot .375 from the field.

Abdul-Jabbar, who was scheduled to return to the Milwaukee lineup this Saturday, still is sporting a swollen hand and could be out up to two more weeks, Costello said.

The Bucks jumped out to an 18-7 first quarter advantage, then built their lead to 38-19 with 4:30 remaining in the first half. After that, it was all Boston as Paul Silas led the Celtics with 22 points. Bob Dandridge was high for Milwaukee with 24.

The New Orleans Jazz had the same problem as Boston. But it was a different ending.

Behind 70-68 with nine minutes left in the game, Chicago put on a 10-2 spurt to take over the lead for good. Chet Walker paced the Bulls with 30 points, three more than Jazz star Pete Maravich.

Bob McAdoo scored 32 points and grabbed 23 rebounds to lead the Buffalo Braves to their fifth consecutive victory. The Braves also put a final quarter muzzle on Cleveland's Austin Carr, who scored all 28 of his points in the first three periods.

Ed Ratleff, Calvin Murphy and Steve Hawes combined for 19 points as Houston outscored the Kings 28-4 midway through the second half. Mike Newlin finished with 25 points and Rudy Tomjanovich added 17.

Rick Barry's 33 points led the Golden State Warriors to their third straight victory and ninth in their last 10 games.

More depth should help Ashton outlook

By MIKE CUNIFF
Telegraph Sports Editor

ASHTON — The Ashton Aces face several new opponents, two different tournaments and are in a new conference for the upcoming basketball season and head varsity coach Jim McNamara hopes for a turn-about of a 5-19 overall record last year.

"I'm optimistic," McNamara said Tuesday. "We've got a lot more experience coming back than last year and the kids have a very positive outlook for the season. Most of them worked hard over the past year to improve."

"And we've got a number of juniors who will be pushing seniors for positions." The Aces, who had only three letter winners return last season, boast six this time around headed by 6'9" senior center Dennis Echelbarger.

Also back are Glen Hart and Ray O'Dell, both 6'3", 6'0" Norbert Dunkel, 5'10" Ed Heckman and 5'9" Joe Hill. Echelbarger scored 18.6 points a game last season with 191 field goals in 351 shots plus 44 of 80 charity tosses. The pivotman appeared in 23 games, scored 426 points and averaged 11 boards per contest.

Hart chipped in with an 8.5 scoring norm based on 74 baskets and 55 free throws. O'Dell dumped in 107 points in 23 contests while Dunkel collected 30 markers in limited action. Heckman accounted for 60 points. Hill added 21 as the Aces averaged 50.5 points per game while giving up 56.6.

The points scored contrasted to surrendered per contest is a misleading figure as Ashton lost a number of games last season by a handful of points or less. McNamara thinks his club will have the experience to swing a victory in favor of the Aces more often this campaign.

"Dennis has two years of experience now and there has been an overall improvement in shooting in this team," he observed. "And from what we've seen in practice so far, we'll be more aggressive on defense. We've got quite a bit of depth. You can take any of the 12 people we have and put them on the floor in a given situation."

"We have to improve our guard play," McNamara stated, "and we must stress working on our passing. We should be able to look for the inside shot more than last year. We kind of stood around and wouldn't put up the 15-footer last year but we have improved considerably in this area."

"All positions are wide open. I've told the boys after practice on the 25th (November), I will tell them who will start (the first game) on the 26th. We've got lots of people who want to play and lots of competition for positions."

Making serious bids for playing time are juniors Jeff Meiners (6'4"), Mike Pfeiffer (6'0"), Jeff Reif (6'1"), Mark Heinhorst (5'11") and Mike Caldwell (5'8") plus 6'1" senior Kevin Kurth out for his first season.

The Aces will begin their schedule at home versus Leland on Nov. 26 and Byron on Nov. 29 instead of the usual Ashton round robin tournament which has been dropped. The green-and-gold will switch from the Polo Christmas tournament to an eight-team holiday tourney at Amboy.

Dropping out of the round robin tournament was scheduled since the Aces will be involved in the Upstate Illini tournament to be held at Pearl City on Jan. 27-31 in 1975. Asked about a conference prediction, McNamara replied, "I just don't know."

"I've never seen Orangeville, Durand or Pearl City play basketball and I don't know what they will have. We will be pretty high in the standings and we should have a good shot of winning it."

Ashton will compete in one division of the Upstate Illini against Durand, Franklin Center, Leaf River, Orangeville, Pearl City and Rockford Lutheran.

"Offensively, we will try to run and get the fast break," McNamara reported. "But we won't try to force it. If we have to, we'll set up and run pattern ball. But my philosophy is to get the ball downcourt as fast as possible and get a few baskets that way if we can."

"On defense, we are going to work harder on our man-to-man and plan to use it as much as possible. We'll be able to put more pressure on people than we were last year. But we could go zone, too, and this will just depend on the team we're playing. A team with a real mobile small center will probably mean we will play a zone to protect our players from fouls."

Title IX traps the men

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some athletic directors view Title IX the same way they would a sand trap, or next Saturday's opponent. It's the enemy. Some women view it as their best friend since the 19th Amendment gave them the right to vote.

But to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the federal agency that will make certain there is no sexual discrimination in college athletics, Title IX is Public Law 92318. It is part of the 1972 Education Act passed by Congress, and it is a legal ticket for women seeking equality and new dollars from college sports programs.

And it must be enforced. Which is where HEW comes in. "We didn't initiate this law," says Lou Mathis, director of public affairs in HEW's civil rights division. "That was done by women's pressure groups to Congress."

"But now the NCAA and all the athletic directors are saying we're trying to destroy college athletics. Well, we're not. All we're doing is enforcing the law. That's our job as spelled out by the Constitution. Why don't they attack the Constitution?"

The reputations of Thomas Jefferson, James Madison and friends are secure. The law is digestible; it's HEW's interpretation that the NCAA can't stomach.

When HEW made public its tentative Title IX enforcement regulations last June, the public was given until Oct. 15 to voice an opinion. In early October, the NCAA's poison pen letter, a 26-page statement, was dropped on HEW's doorstep. To put it mildly, the NCAA doesn't care for the tentative regulations.

What those regulations say, in effect, is that the nation's colleges must find thousands of new dollars for women's athletics, and that is the NCAA's objection. It claimed in its statement to HEW that the regulations written last June were patently deficient and that they showed an "appalling lack" of knowledge about college athletics.

Basically, those June regulations require that all schools receiving federal funds "must treat their admitted students without discrimination on the basis of sex." If students compete to get on a team, "athletics may be provided through separate teams for males and females, or through a single team open to both sexes."

If separate teams are offered, Title IX says a college does not necessarily have to spend the same amount of money for the women as it does the men. But it also says that they "may not discriminate on the basis of sex in provision of necessary equipment or supplies, or in any other way."

And, here again, the colleges scream foul, claiming that what this law really says is that if they spend $1 million for a men's football team, they may have to spend $1 million for women. And they say they don't have that kind of money.

Furthermore, Title IX's tentative regulations say that where one sex—meaning female—has been discriminated against in the past, "an institution must make affirmative efforts to inform members of that sex of the availability of equal opportunities and to provide support and training to enable them to participate."

That last statement also means they must take steps to correct past abuses, and again some colleges believe this is another regulation which will require them to take money out of men's programs and give it to women.

The NCAA statement said the Title IX regulations were illegally far-reaching, claiming that no athletic program actually received federal funds.

"It's true that there are no athletic programs, at least to my knowledge, that are federally financed," says Gwen Gregory, the HEW lawyer chiefly responsible for Title IX regulations. "However, the athletic program is part of the schools' over-all program."

"Any discrimination in the athletic program would infect the entire undergraduate student program. You can't separate them. I think it is clear that if there is discrimination against a student in athletics...it effects anything else that student is involved in."

The major concern of the NCAA and the athletic directors is money.

"I feel the HEW requirements will force a lot of schools to cut back on athletic budgets," says Brigham Young University's athletic director Stan Watts. "It's a great concern here at BYU. I hope Congress will take a good hard look at this and exclude football and basketball from the requirements."

"It would really put us in a financial bind if we were required to give equal opportunities to women."

Football and basketball, the revenue producing sports that fund most schools' entire athletic program, have not been excluded from Title IX.

Miss Gregory said those two sports were not exempted because they were no different than any other scholastic program. The universities can pump money into football and basketball as long as they do it in a non-discriminatory manner.

People in the news

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon may be well enough to leave Memorial Hospital Medical Center this week, according to his doctors.

They said he was eating normal foods and walking in his room Monday.

Nixon's condition was listed as intermediate — which means a nurse is with him around the clock — and he had resumed taking an anticoagulant drug to prevent further blood clots in his phlebitis-stricken left leg.

The 61-year-old former president went into shock and suffered internal bleeding after surgery on Oct. 29. He was in critical condition for several days and was in serious condition last week.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Singer Vicki Carr was scheduled to perform at the White House dinner tonight in honor of visiting Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky.

NEW YORK (AP) — Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis, 68-year-old husband of the former Jacqueline Kennedy, has been released from New York Hospital. A spokesman said Monday that Onassis had been undergoing an annual physical checkup, but he declined to issue a report on the outcome. Onassis was unavailable for comment.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Archbishop Makarios says he hopes to return to Cyprus by the end of this month to resume his presidency.

As he boarded a plane for New York here Monday, Makarios, 61, said: "I am the president and there is nothing to prevent me from going back to Cyprus or from resuming my task and duties as president."

The Greek Orthodox prelate, here to attend a weekend benefit for Cypriot refugees, was forced from Cyprus after Turkish troops invaded the island nation following a July coup by Greek officers of the Cypriot National Guard.

Makarios was to spend today in New York and then go to Washington Wednesday to confer with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley says urban terrorists such as the Weather People, the Symbionese Liberation Army and the Black Liberation Army pose a major threat to the internal security of the United States.

Kelley told the Military Order of the World Wars here Monday that such groups "share a common denominator — that is, hatred of America, free government and other constitutional liberties."

He said the FBI is "seeking new and different investigative techniques of handling these revolutionaries."

Assignment to students leads to design project

DeKALB—Robert Bartholomew, a Northern Illinois University art instructor, assigned his students a design project, and ended up doing one himself.

As a result of requiring his students to design learning devices for mentally retarded children, Bartholomew became aware of the great need in this area and decided to use his creative talents to do something about it.

Realizing that learning devices can play a significant role in the correction of a mentally retarded child's behavior, Bartholomew and his research co-workers set out to design the devices and test their effectiveness with a group of children attending classes for trainable mentally retarded youngsters at a special education center in Ithaca, N.Y.

Because the designers were interested in whether the same learning devices would assist in the learning of skills by children of normal intellectual ability and the same mental age as the retarded children, the devices were tested with a small group of nursery school children ranging in age from 2½ to 3½ years old.

The project was co-directed by Bartholomew and Dr. Bonnie Meyer, an educational psychologist and learning disabilities teacher who also is a visiting fellow of the Educational Testing Service.

With two other designers, they developed and evaluated their learning devices and found that there was a definite correlation between the appropriateness of the learning device design and the ability to acquire basic skills.

Psychologists say that learning can be considered a change of behavior resulting from experiences. For the trainable mentally retarded, learning means largely the acquisition of skills, especially survival skills.

With the aim of helping retarded children to enter society or to at least achieve a level of performance that would reduce institutional care as much as possible, Bartholomew's research group designed five learning devices and tested them with both normal and retarded children of the same mental age.

One of the learning aids was a visual discrimination puzzle designed in three different forms. Each was a series of shape progressions in which the child would put the puzzle pieces in their corresponding spaces on a frame. It was designed to help the child learn recognition of shapes, matching and differentiation.

Perceptual development cards were designed to develop the child's ability to distinguish particular objects in a visually-saturated environment and select the object from a competing background. This device helps the child to develop shape, color and object recognition and assists in adjusting to visual stimuli.

One of the most popular devices with the children was a body parts puzzle, a nearly life-size puzzle of a boy, that aided in body part labeling and matching and the development of body concept.

The number puzzle consisted of separate puzzles of the numbers one through nine. It was used to increase the child's knowledge of numerical concepts, number recognition and to develop fine motor control.

Colored beads in two identical containers connected by a tube made up the measuring learning device. It promoted eye-hand coordination and demonstrated the concepts of empty, full, half full, more, less, in, out, through and right and left.

The word "toy" was avoided in describing the devices, Bartholomew said, because it was the research group's philosophy that a toy's primary purpose has been entertainment and not instruction. The researchers, however, did recognize play as an effective and natural way of learning for children.

Teachers and administrators at the Special Education Center operated by the Board of Cooperative Educational Services (BOCES), Ithaca, N.Y., assisted in the project.

From the responses of the teachers whose classes took part in the testing, it would appear that the learning devices were highly successful.

One of the teachers wrote, "In general, the learning devices project proved to be a marvelous learning experience for our children. They have gained many new concepts and reinforced others through the use of the colorful devices and excellent instruction."

Bartholomew's research indicated that there is considerable teacher dissatisfaction with the toys now available for use by the handicapped child and a need for devices with proven instructional capabilities. One result of the project, he said, was the development of a set of performance criteria to serve as a guide in designing such devices.

Mt. Morris board meets

MT. MORRIS—The future purchase of a machine for sampling of effluent from the sewer plant was discussed at the Mt. Morris Village Board meeting Tuesday. No final action was taken by the board at this time.

Bruce True, chairman of the finance committee, reported all finances will be handled in the following order: procedures for payment of bills, transfers, computer progress, investments and purchase orders.

A building permit was granted to Dean Macklin, 307 S. McKendrie, for an addition to enlarge a kitchen. Mrs. Leland Messer also received a permit to construct a smoke house for fish out of an old refrigerator. The board added there was no law against the smoke house, as long as the latch was off the refrigerator.

Another county misses votes

CHARLESTON, Ill. (AP) — Democratic party officials in Coles County say there may be several hundred votes missing in last week's election.

Harry Grafton, Coles County clerk, said about 275 votes were missing in the general election. But Democratic party officials say there are about 1,300 votes missing.

Republicans won the three county races on the ballot—each by less than 500 votes.

Delmer Ward of the Illinois Board of Elections said the board is checking to see if the missing votes resulted from human or mechanical error.

New voting machines were purchased from the Frank Thorber Co. of Chicago this year.

Ward said he did not know if there is a precedent to hold another election.

Comedy about zany family this weekend in Amboy

AMBOY— "You Can't Take It With You," a comedy by George Kaufman and Moss Hart, will be presented at the Amboy High School fall play at 8 Friday and Saturday nights in the school auditorium.

The story is about an unconventional family named Sycamore. Grandpa (Tony McCoy) left Wall Street as a broker over 35 years ago, pays no taxes, and has some "different" hobbies. The iceman (Buck Fenwick) liked the family's life style and moved in eight years ago. Mr. Sycamore (Dave Stenzel) sells fireworks for a living, while his wife (Julie Leffelman) keeps active writing manuscripts she never completes. Their daughter and her husband (Jean Full and Keith Brown) never allow a dull moment while she dances ballet to his piano accompaniment. By the time the whole cast appears things are in a hilarious uproar. The cast also includes: Cindy O'Hare, Craig Walters, Teresa Scully, Jim Henkel, Tom Welty, Greg Koch, Jan Gorton, Greg Es-gar, Kathy Brown, Cheryl O'Hare, Marnie Robbins, Kris Koch, and Bridget Dunphy.

Miss Carolyn Nelson is the director of the play and she is assisted by Ronnie Stephennitch, as student director.

Also assisting with the production are Nadine McLaughlin and Greg Peterson, managers of props and scenery; Kendra Reuter, Denise Haws and Marlene Leffelman, in charge of publicity.

Tickets are available at the door.

Williams' gun fired three times

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — A pistol belonging to slain University of Illinois football star Greg Williams had been fired three times, Police Chief Harvey Shirley said today.

Shirley said the gun was turned over by Williams' brother, Tommie, who had come from Miami, Fla., to make funeral arrangements.

The police chief said three cartridges in the .38 caliber snub-nosed revolver had been fired.

Earlier this week, Shirley said Williams was not an innocent bystander at the incident in which Williams was shot in the head and another student, Carl Belser, 20, of Maywood, was shot in the leg. Williams body was found wearing a holster but the gun was not immediately recovered.

Shirley also said a trail of blood was found leading from the Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity to a spot a half block away, where it stopped.

The pistol was picked up at the scene early Saturday morning by one of Williams' fraternity brothers, kept overnight and then given to Tommie Williams, Shirley said.

Shirley added that the bullet recovered from Williams' skull was smaller than a .38 caliber and could not have been fired from Williams' gun.

The shootings occurred at a fraternity party early Saturday. Shirley said he has witnesses who saw Williams fire a gun at the intruders.

There have been no arrests in the case.

Rochelle youth is ticketed

OREGON — A Rochelle youth, Dale D. Brown, was ticketed Tuesday following a one-car mishap at the intersection of U.S. 51 and Ill. 64.

Ogle County Sheriff's Police cited Brown, 16, with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident. Brown's eastbound car on Ill. 64 skidded 73 feet, striking a stop sign, deputies said. There were no injuries.

Rochelle garbage hike is rejected

ROCHELLE—A 90 cent hike for residential garbage pick-up by the Rochelle Disposal Service was unanimously rejected Tuesday night by the Rochelle City Council. The Rochelle Disposal service was the lone bidder with a $3.15 rate per house on the garbage pick-up contract. The present fee for service is $2.25.

Another proposal submitted by Mayor Bill Cipolla for garbage collection was also defeated. Cipolla's proposal called for the city to take over the garbage pick-up business. Cipolla told the council revenue sharing funds would be used to purchase two garbage trucks and the garbage tax levy would be used for employee payment and maintenance of the trucks. An old city building would have been used to house the trucks under the mayor's proposal.

Cipolla said in the past 12 years, $291,900 of garbage tax has gone into the general fund and recently been transferred into the garbage fund to pay for the new landfill. He continued by saying the city would not be performing a free service since $1.90 is being taken through taxes for the garbage fund.

With the present $2.25 additional billing, the cost is over $4 per month. Cipolla's proposal was defeated 3-1, with the mayor casting the lone yes vote. Commissioner Francis Connolly was absent.

Commissioner Clarence Rasmussen then introduced a proposal similar to the present garbage contract. Rasmussen's proposal would cover a five-year automatic renewal clause and would make the contractor responsible for the garbage collection. The billing would continue to be handled by the Utilities Department, with the garbage contractor responsible for half of the postage and cards used for billing. The contract would also be subject to revision once a year and each party can terminate the agreement under Rasmussen's proposal. On a 3-1 vote, with the mayor casting the only no vote, Rasmussen's proposal was filed for public inspection for one week.

In other action, the council discussed the Ogle-Lee Fire Protection District. Fire Chief William Lower told the council the original contract was on a limited basis and the district has now taken two other towns, Hillcrest and Steward, into the district. The village of Steward is maintaining its own fire station and equipment.

Council members unanimously approved an ordinance to make it mandatory for a person running for a city commissioner's post to designate which specific post he is running for. The ordinance was adopted following the passage of a Nov. 5 election referendum for commissioners to declare which post they are running for. In a canvass of the votes, the yes votes on the referendum totaled 1,288, with 476 no votes, 28 spoiled ballots and 59 persons not voting. A total of 1,851 people, or 41 per cent of the Rochelle voters, cast ballots in the election.

Cast chosen for SVC stage effort

The cast has been selected for Sauk Valley Players' production of "Two By Two." This hit Broadway musical by Richard Rodgers (of Rodgers and Hammerstein fame) deals with Noah and the Ark. Although the story has an obvious biblical reference, the play deals in a very modern way with the frustrations and fears of the eight people chosen by God to repopulate the earth after the flood.

David Herzog, Dixon, will portray the 600-year-old Noah, who is a little more than surprised to find that God has chosen him for the monumental task of building the ark. Esther, Noah's capable and strong-willed wife, will be played by Karen Pinter of the Sauk Valley faculty. Noah's sons, Japheth, Ham, and Shem, will be played by Greg Rehner, Sterling, Randy Burgess, Rock Falls; and Rod Biagioli, Dixon. Their wives will be played by Barbara Neiderer, Sterling; Laura Thompson, Tampico; and Jeanine Morick, Sterling.

The play will be directed by Nels Anderson with musical direction by Ruth Hedstrom, and choreography by Anne Martin. Performance dates are set for Dec. 4, 5, 6, and 7 at 8:15 p.m.

Sought in assault

OREGON — Ogle County Sheriff's Police are continuing their search for a Rockford man wanted in connection with an assault Sunday on a 14-year old Rockford girl. A warrant was obtained for the arrest of Daniel Lewis, 34, on a charge of taking indecent liberties with a child.

The girl told police she managed to jump from Lewis' car south of Byron near Rock River Terrace following the assault. The 14-year-old was taken to Rockford Memorial Hospital for examination. Lewis remained at large at nighttime today. Authorities believe the suspect left the area following the alleged act.

Veto overrides could hike taxes, says Lindberg

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — State Comptroller George Lindberg says if the General Assembly overrides a number of the governor's vetoes this fall, the state could face a tax increase within three years.

Lindberg told newsmen at a briefing Tuesday that there may not even be room for tax relief this year.

"Based on the uncertainty of the economy ... the best tax relief would be efficient management of existing programs and services so a tax increase can be avoided later," the Republican comptroller said.

He said that the state could afford a tax relief measure this year unless it was coupled with reinstatement of Gov. Daniel Walker's budget cuts by the legislature.

He said the state then would be in poor financial shape in 1976 and the Walker administration would be "scurrying around looking for some money before the 1976 elections."

The General Assembly returns Nov. 28 to consider a number of Walker vetoes, including reductions in state employee pay hikes and the cost-of-living allowance for welfare recipients.

Lindberg also said Walker will need a hefty increase in his budget to honor welfare claims through July 1975 if current trends continue.

Lindberg said that based on claims paid for the first four months of the current fiscal year, Walker will need $134 million more than the $1.375 billion he approved for welfare grants.

The governor requested virtually no increase in his budget for welfare grants in fiscal 1975. Walker insisted the administration would succeed in weeding out ineligible persons from the welfare rolls and that this savings would mean no increase would be necessary over 1974 welfare spending.

Harold Hovey, Walker's budget chief, said it appears the governor did underestimate welfare needs for the current fiscal year but cautioned that Lindberg's estimate of $134 million "sounds high."

Manpower program discussed

The provision of planning and evaluation services for the Regional Manpower Program was discussed at the November meeting of the Northwest Illinois Regional Council of Public Officials in Mt. Carroll.

The program is responsible for more than $1,000,000 in educational and vocational services in Jo Daviess, Carroll, Whiteside, Stephenson, Ogle, Lee and DeKalb Counties.

The Illinois Department of Local Government Affairs is offering the Northwest Council $19,000 to provide staff assistance for planning and evaluation of the programs.

This marks the first time that the local elected officials have been asked to become involved in manpower programs.

The council indicated its interest in the program and asked its Executive Committee to take appropriate action on receipt of the contract from the state.

In other business the council heard a presentation from Eugene C. Hardiek, project coordinator for Blackhawk Hills Resource Conservation and Development Project.

Hardiek explained that his group is preparing a project plan for resource conservation and development in six counties in northwest Illinois.

Exchange of ideas and coordination of work programs between the council and Blackhawk Hills RC & D are necessary to the success of both efforts, Hardiek said.

Trouble seen from long strike

By GINNY PITT
Associated Press Writer
Rail, steel, utility and other coal-dependent industry spokesmen are predicting serious trouble ahead if the miners' strike is a long one.
And many rank-and-file members of the United Mine Workers union express concern about feeding their families during a lengthy strike but vow to stay out until a fair contract is negotiated.

The union has estimated that the strike will last a minimum of three weeks. A contract agreement has not yet been reached, and officials say it will take about 10 days for the 120,000 miners who produce three-fourths of the nation's coal to ratify the pact.

Most industry officials say the effects of the strike will not be felt during the first week. But as it enters a second and third week, layoffs and power cutbacks may become widespread, they say.

The nation's largest coal user, the Tennessee Valley Authority, has a 44-day supply of coal and has already asked for voluntary power use reductions of up to 20 per cent.
In Pennsylvania, where coal is used to provide 81 per cent of the electrical power in the state, officials say most utilities have about a 60-day supply.

Utilities use about two-thirds of the coal produced in the United States each year. The steel industry uses about one-sixth and other industries use the rest.
The effects of the strike were expected to hit railroads first. The bankrupt Penn Central said $5 million a week in revenue could be lost and 1,500 workers would be immediately laid off. More layoffs may follow as the strike continues, a spokesman said.

Steel officials began several weeks ago setting up some contingency plans in anticipation of the strike, and industry analysts predicted that thousands of layoffs and significant production cutbacks could accompany a strike of longer than two weeks duration.

In the coalfields on Monday, many miners spent the Veterans Day holiday worrying about the loss of their $42 to $50 a day income from the mines.

After the seven day period, when merchandise is marked at the new price, it will assure our customers that National is selling the product at the same price in All Stores.

THURSDAY 8:00 P.M. NOVEMBER 14

Theme chosen for Ohio Woman's Club

OHIO — "Whatever is worth doing at all, is worth doing well," is the theme chosen by the Ohio Woman's Club for this year's programs. At the November meeting held at the home of Mrs. Clayton Guither, the idea developed was "Do more than care . . . act."

Mrs. John Revell, president of the Perry Memorial Hospital Auxiliary, guest speaker, outlined the activities of the auxiliary which is in its 26th year.

This group works to provide extra care and comfort not only to the patients but also for the hospital personnel.

An employee's room has been made more comfortable with the installation of carpeting. Individual steel lockers are planned for in the near future. Two of the machines which have been provided for the use of the medical staff are a minitor for the intensive care ward, and a defibrillator, a shock machine. The project underway now is a pediatrics ward which will cost $20,000. They hope to accomplish this in four years.

The members of the auxiliary show they "do more than care . . . they act." Hours of volunteer service are given through the activities of the committees: the gift shop, library cart, sewing, chapel ushers, and many other services.

Music for the evening was provided by Mrs. John McCabe at the electric organ, and by Miss Linda Esterday, who played a few of the numbers that were recorded at the final concert given at the music camp she attended last summer at the Western Illinois University. Miss Esterday was a recipient of one of the scholarships given by the Ohio Woman's Club. Mrs. Paul Milbrandt read the Collect for Club Women.

Mrs. Clifford Anderson, president, conducted the business meeting. The club voted to send a check to the Park Ridge School for girls for their Christmas fund.

Mrs. Anderson presided at the tea table set with antique Haviland china, a Guither heirloom. Hostesses for the evening were: Mrs. Clayton Guither, Mrs. Gerald Clark and Mrs. Lester Morgensen.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE B-493: Lena R., aged 20, is a college coed.
"Dr. Crane," she began, "your 'Worry Clinic' is winning me a wedding ring next month!"
"For I was being dated by a very popular boy on campus. He had had dates with several coeds before we met, though now he began to focus on me."
"But he soon wanted me to give in to him and have an illicit affair."
"He asked me to go to a motel one weekend and stay with him, as man and wife, for he said all the girls did such things nowadays."
"Well, I was shocked and brokenhearted, for I really loved him truly."
"But I told him I was then the exception to his rule."
"And I said I was disappointed in him for I had thought he wasn't like the usual man in being interested only in sex."
"Well, I was in tears at that point, so I left him and ran into the dormitory."
"And I felt that all my idealistic dreams had crashed around my head, so I cried myself to sleep."
"He didn't come back for more dates until several weeks later, when he telephoned, asking me out for dinner."
"By this time, I had been able to pick up the pieces of my shattered dreams, so I could smile and affect a gay mood I didn't feel."
"During the meal, he was more quiet than usual, so I tried to keep conversation flowing."
"And as we strolled across the campus on the way to my dormitory, he suggested we sit down and watch the moon out over Lake Michigan."
"Then he suddenly blurted out an apology, saying he was sorry about what he had said to me the night we quarreled."
"And he told me he loved me with all his heart, for he now realized he couldn't really care for any girl unless he respected her."
"Then he proposed to me, though I almost feared to believe what he was saying."
"So I asked him if he was positive about his feelings."
"He nodded and then pulled a little jewel box out of his pocket, telling me to open it."
"It was a lovely diamond engagement ring."
"He said he had never offered a ring to any girl before, but if I would be his wife, he'd put it on my finger at that moment and follow it up with a wedding band after our graduation."
"Well, Dr. Crane, I was so choked with happy tears that I could only nod assent, so he slipped the ring on my finger and then he kissed me."
"But if I hadn't read your frequent warning that men prefer to select wives from girls with spunk and religious idealism, I'd probably have ruined my chance for true happiness."
Wives Are Special
Repeatedly I have warned you unmarried girls that men may play around with several goodtime girls, yet desert them when it comes time for marriage!

For true love involves respect and idealism, in addition to physical magnetism or erotic charisma.
Men may consort with women of loose morals and even protest their love in order to make a girl surrender to their sexual demands.
Yet they may have no real love for her, for men want wives with moral spunk and idealism!
So send for my "Tests for Sweethearts," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.
(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

For Thursday, Nov. 14, 1974
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try not to skip over a problem, thinking it will take care of itself later on. It won't!
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Avoid friends for the present who are able to spend beyond your budget. It will exhaust your purse just trying to keep up with them.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Make an extra effort to be as practical as possible in making major decisions. You tend to take more for granted than is wise.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you've performed a task that you're especially proud of, let someone else beat the drum. Boasting about it will turn your listener off.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't gamble on things sight-unseen. For the next few days you're not too lucky with situations over which you don't have direct control.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be sensible regarding things you want to get for the home and family. If you can't afford them now, wait a bit till you can.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll be tempted to give another expert directions on how to do something you know little about. It will cause a problem if you do.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're a shade too liberal and loose with your assets. Later, you'll wonder why your funds haven't stretched as far as you anticipated.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try not to jump into situations today unless you know for sure just how deep they are. Your impulsiveness will get you in over your head.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're likely to jump to conclusions before the facts are in. Wait till you're sure you have all the information you need before acting.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) One way to always go out of your way to do things for but who seldom reciprocates will get you to for something again today.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There's a lot of opportunity about you at this time but you tend to take things for granted. You don't make of them what you should.

Harvest Day Self-basting Turkeys

All Harvest Day Self-basting Turkeys are U.S.D.A. Grade A, the government's highest poultry standard. And the only grade of poultry we sell.
They are plump, tender birds that roast to a golden brown in their own natural juices. There's no guessing, because they come complete with a pop-up thermometer that tells you when they're done. And serving is easier, because our Harvest Day Turkeys have a convenient carving knife built into the handle.
Harvest Day Self-basting Turkeys. A holiday tradition, exclusively at Eagle!

Our Price Protection Policy guarantees these turkeys to be effective from Wednesday, November 13th, through Sunday, November 17th, regardless of cost increases.

The Doctor Says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB - I have what my doctor describes as Meniere's disease. It is located in my right ear where I have hearing loss is usually worse little or no hearing and I'm always dizzy. There is also a constant buzzing.
Could you give me a little information on this as to what causes it, if there is a cure, and any other information on it, as I am very interested in the dizziness is quite severe.
DEAR READER - It's a fairly common problem. Typically it is characterized by buzzing or ringing in the ear or ears, with loss of hearing and dizziness.
A group of patients have similar complaints without the hearing loss, and they are called "pseudo-Meniere's disease," meaning false Meniere's disease. Many of these develop the hearing loss later and are then properly classified as Meniere's disease.
Some patients have nausea, vomiting and sensations of fainting with the attacks. The problem seems to involve the delicate semicircular canals and hearing parts of the ear. It is not a disease of the brain or of any part of the brain.
Just why the delicate ear organs become so sensitive is not known. Some doctors think it is because of an accumulation of excess fluid in the complex structure of the ear, or several hours. During the severe attack the patient calls dizziness may be so bad that the patient cannot walk.

Most attacks can be controlled by various medicines the doctor uses to counteract dizziness, including those used to prevent motion sickness. Other measures have also been used, including a low-salt diet with variable results. It is fair to say that no one form of treatment has been a cure-all for all patients with this problem. It is important to have continued checks of your hearing and evaluation of your progress. While your doctor can't be expected to cure your problem, he can give you medicines that will provide a great deal of relief and make it possible for you to get along much better, specifically limiting or preventing disabling attacks.

MOSTLY For MEN

by CHUCK FLYNN

A beef stew rich and hearty will enliven any party, especially on a cold and wintry evening. Making a stew "something special" takes only care in preparation and skillful blending of flavors.

This is one of the best I've concocted. Choose an English cut roast, which is a crossrib section of the chuck and has small rib bones which contribute to richness. To serve 8 you'll need 3½ to 4 pounds.

After the beef reaches room temperature, cut into 2-inch cubes and brown them in a mixture of butter and bacon fat, adding fat as may be needed. Remove the browned cubes to a roasting pan or a dutch oven and keep warm.

In the same fat brown 4 medium onions, peeled and sliced rather thick. When onions are brown, add a half pound of fresh mushrooms, sliced, and cook another two or three minutes. Put atop the beef.

In 2 cups beef stock or consommé stir 6 tablespoons flour and 2 tablespoons tomato paste. Cook and stir until mixture is smooth. Sprinkle the browned beef and vegetables with ¼ teaspoon majoram, ¼ teaspoon rosemary, ¼ teaspoon thyme, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper. Pour over the stock mixture, add 1 cup burgundy (red) wine, and stir gently with wooden spoon.

Cover tightly and bake in a moderate oven (325 to 350) for 3 hours or until beef cubes are tender. Add more wine (or stock) as needed. Serve in a heated metal tray garnished with chopped fresh parsley and have plenty of good crisp French bread to accompany the stew. Here's a light California Mission salad which also will go well with beef stew. Peel 4 seedless navel oranges with serrated knife, removing both pith and peel. Slice oranges thinly, working over the salad bowl so no juice is lost. Remove core from a sweet green pepper and cut into thin rings. Peel and slice thin 1 sweet onion.

Add onion and pepper to salad bowl along with 1-3rd cup sliced ripe olives, ¼ cup salad oil, 1 tablespoon lime juice and ¼ teaspoon salt. Toss, then cover and chill for about an hour to let flavors blend. Toss again before serving. Enough for 4 to 6 salads.
